

What kind of a name is The Krazy Firemen?

Oddly enough this name was not chosen by the band itself, but rather a title given to a select group of musicians from the Rochester, New York area.

The original members of this group, being avid participants in the concert and marching bands for local fire departments, would often get together in smaller groups to play area 'gigs.' When the public asked the name of the group, friends would reply, "They're just a bunch of crazy firemen."

This small group of musicians has since evolved into a band that has witnessed three decades of unprecedented success.

The Krazy Firemen have experienced not only commercial success, but also the success of musical excellence in performance and entertainment. The band and it's members can proudly lay claim to a rather impressive list of credentials:

- Members hail from such prestigious alma maters as Julliard and The Eastman School of Music.
- Participants in the Tournament of Roses Parade
- Featured performers at Disneyland
- Members who both write and arrange music professionally
- Three European Tours
- Three recording contracts

The band's versatility keeps them in constant demand for a variety of repeat engagements at various locations. Whether called upon to lead an Oktoberfest celebration or a gala black tie affair, The Krazy Firemen are comfortable with all music venues. Whether playing Strauss waltzes, circus marches, old time Rock & Roll, or Country Western, The Krazy Firemen can deliver a performance tailor-made to your individual entertainment needs and tastes.
